$1.50 PER YEAR

FILES SLANDER SUIT FOR $50,000

FRED SCHMEDIKNECHT, TINLEY PARK POLICE CHIEF SEEKS DAMAGES FROM JOE GRECO CHARGING FALSE ARREST

Police Chief Fred Schmiedknecht of Tinley Park, thru his attorney F. A. Harper, has filed a suit for $50,000 against Joe Greco also of Tinley Park, said suit being filed in the Circuit Court of Cook County.

In his suit the officer charges Greco with false arrest, and malicious prosecution. The fore part of January of this year the former was routed out of bed one morning about 2 o'clock and placed under arrest and taken to Chicago Heights and locked up for several hours on a warrant issued against him by Joe Greco of Tinley Park on the charge of having mistreated his 15 year old daughter, Mary.

Officer Schmiedknecht was released on a $10,000 bond and after several hearings of the case in the court of Judge David Shapiro in Chicago Heights, the case was thrown out of court by Judge Shapiro.

Now as an aftermath of this case, officer Schmiedknecht has brought this slander suit against Greco to clear his name. According to Attorney Harper this was one of the most contemptible cases which ever occurred in Tinley Park as both the officer, and Val Scheer, who was arrested at the same time on the same charge preferred against him by Greco also, have had their good names dragged thru the mire without any proof of their alleged guilt.

Pay Last Tribute To G. L. Hilton

A large number of friends and neighbors gathered Sunday afternoon at the New Lenox M. E. church to pay their last tributes of honor to their departed fellow citizen, George L. Hilton who has been a prominent figure in the community. He held the office of post master for quite a number of years.

He also was much interested in the real estate line and bought and improved local property. Mr. Hilton was the first man in New Lenox to install a private water system on his property. As the village has no water works, he had a water tower built on his premises in the village and had the water piped to his home and also used it for sprinkling his lawn and garden in the summer time.

Mr. Hilton while yet engaged in the store business was visited a number of times by bandits and his store was burned down twice, but he was not daunted by these set backs, but at once rebuilt. He was also shot at a number of times by robbers. He caused a private burglar alarm system to be installed in his store and home. Mr. Hilton also had charge of the old interurban station at New Lenox for sometime.

Mr. Hilton's end came rather as a surprise. Up until a few months ago, he appeared to be in good health. His cousin, A. N. Hilton of Symerton felt that he was not able to take care of his business affairs and asked that a conservator be appointed and the court appointed him. Mr. Hilton fought the case but lost it. Shortly after he was taken ill and removed to the Silver Cross hospital in Joliet and just a few days before his death he filed an appeal of the case thru his attorney, D. R. Anderson.

MOVES TO MOKENA

Mrs. Florence Hamilton who has been living in Frankfort, moved in with her mother at Mokena the past week.

Mokena Pupils Hear Inauguration Via Radio Wed

For the first time in the history of the United States the citizens of this great nation were able to hear their chief executive take his oath of office and deliver his inaugural address when the ceremonies at Washington were broadcasted via radio Wednesday so that it was possible for anyone who cared to listen in. President Coolidge was very clearly heard in his wonderful address which thrilled many thousands of people in this great nation.

In touching on world peace the President pointed out that this great desire could only be made a reality when the spirit of peace is fostered in the hearts and lives of the people the world over and that it cannot be attained thru armed force or law. In his utterances President Coolidge is likened to Lincoln by his many admirers.

The pupils of the Mokena public school were also enabled to have the pleasure of hearing President Coolidge thru the installation of an Atwater Kent radio in the room of Prof. A. L. Brown by Mokena Hardware Co.

Midlothian Home Destroyed by Fire

The Ward residence on 147th St., near Midlothian was destroyed by fire Monday evening about 8 o'clock. It is said that a furnace operated by an oil burner became overheated and set fire to the roof.

The Blue Island Fire Department responded with their chemical truck but the fire had gained such rapid headway that it was impossible to save the building. The furniture was saved. The dwelling has been used as a summer home by the Ward family.

GIVE PLAY AT ORLAND

A play entitled "Safety First" will be given at the Orland M. E. church next Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock by the young people of the German M. E. church of Tinley Park.

100 Per Cent Ford Town

Turn the Spotlight on North Salem, Ohio.

That busy little community where thrift goes hand in hand with progress, has an unusual claim to distinction.

It is a 100 per cent Ford town. Some time back a thrifty old resident set a good example for the village by purchasing a Ford. The rest of the folks, as soon as they could afford a car, followed suit.

Today every property owner in the place owns at least one Ford. If you don't believe it here are the figures:

The village has a population of 46, boasts 19 dwellings and the popularity of the Ford is attested by the fact that thirty Ford units cars, trucks and Fordson tractors are in use there.

North Salem is located in Guernsey County, Ohio, on the Cleveland and Marietta Highway and if you are motoring in that neighborhood just drop in and investigate for yourself. You'll be welcome—especially so if you're driving a Ford.

THE SIGNATURE SNATCHER

Pointing out that forgeries cause losses of $100,000,000 a year, the American Bankers Association has issued a warning against "Signature Snatchers." They pick discarded deposit slips out of bank wastebaskets and copy depositors' signatures on fake checks. "Be careful of your signature," says the association.—News item.

George Casson, Former Mokena

Resident Dead

George Casson, aged 67 years, a known farmer of Homer township and one time resident of Mokena dropped dead on the farm of Stanley Coe in Homer Saturday Feb. 21.

Mr. Casson had driven a cow over to the Coe farm at about 5 o'clock in the evening, and it was there, Mr. Coe, coming from the barn yard, found the lifeless body of Mr. Casson. Heart trouble is said to have been the cause of death.

Mr. Casson was born in Lockport and when a small boy came with his parents to Mokena where his father ran a grain elevator for many years.

In 1889 he was united in marriage with Miss Jane Casson of Pontiac and was engaged in farming in Homer township for 47 years. To this union three daughters were born all of whom are living.

The deceased is survived by his widow, three daughters, Mrs. Stella Pink of Joliet, Mrs. Beatrice Corp of New Lenox and Miss Florence Casson at home.

Funeral services were held from the late home on Tuesday Feb. 23 with Rev. T. DeWitt Tanner of the Christ Episcopal church, Joliet officiating. Mrs. Fred Cappleman, Mrs. Merritt Cagwin and Miss Pearl Wells sang "Face to Face" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere". Burial took place in the Marshall cemetery.

Walter Fisher Will Hold Big Sale

Walter Fisher, well known Mokena merchant who has been offering his customers many notable bargains in the way of special sales, is again about to put on a real money saving sale beginning March 6th and ending March 14.

JUDGE'S SMOKEHOUSE BURNS Judge John Schultz of Mokena had a real thrill Tuesday when his smoke house caught fire and burned. The loss was two hams and 6 slabs of bacon. The judge had gone up town and was on his way home when he saw the fire from a distance. Help soon came and the blaze was put out.

Mokena Pastor Says Bad Books

Undermine Home

Trashy literature is cause for the breaking down of the American home was a salient point in a sermon at the Mokena M. E. church Sunday night by Rev. A. R. Mangus on the subject "The Invasion of God's Country".

In his sermon Rev. Mr. Mangus showed that the home is God's country but that many outside forces are playing in as to cause the sacredness of the home to be invaded.

The divorce evil and the lax way in which irresponsible and incapable parents bring up children together with indecent trashy literature are uniting in breaking down the once sacred institution of home.

Rev. Mr. Mangus showed that the majority of magazines and also books of today are full of suggestive sex stories and articles that are working havoc with the morals of the young folks.

These things must be overcome if the sanctity of the home is to be preserved. If the home is disrupted the nation will also share a like fate, for only thru the home can a nation be made great or cause to disintegrate.

Rev. Mr. Mangus further pointed out how the students in Germany waged war on indecent literature during the Youth Movement which has since spread all over the world. In one instance the students found a shop keeper near a college handling many kind of questionable books and other literature and when he refused to discontinue handling same, they seized the obnoxious literature and burned it in the street.

Chamberlain Farm Gets New Tenant

The Chamberlain farm in New Lenox township which was much in the limelight last fall when a move was on by the Liberia Land and Development Co., of Chicago to acquire it for a colored colonization scheme, has been vacated by Homer Kemp who held a sale last Saturday and Glenn Fuller of Plainfield has taken possession of the farm for this year.

Cupid Invades Mokena School

Miss Henriette Jones, one of the teachers of the Mokena public school, who resigned last week to become the bride of Mr. Patterson of Wheatland, was tendered a farewell surprise last Friday when the pupils of her room presented her with a beautiful water set and the students and teachers of the other rooms presented her with a $10 gold piece as a token of esteem.

Miss Jones has taught here for three years and was well liked by the pupils and all who knew her and they wish her a full measure of happiness.

Miss Benson of Chicago has been engaged to teach the unexpired term of Miss Jones.

Mr. Patterson has purchased a farm 7 miles northeast of Plainfield on which the newly weds will go to housekeeping.

Seek Radio For Mokena School

The past week the pupils of the Mokena public school launched a movement to raise money with which to purchase and install a radio in the school. The pupils organized in two teams, the graded and the high school team and started out soliciting subscriptions for the Woman's Home Companion, a monthly magazine, the subscription price of which is $1.50 of which the school gets half. Thus far about 35 subscriptions have been sold.

Tracy Will Hold Mass Meeting to Organize A Community Club

For sometime the matter of organizing a community club in Tinley Park has been agitated and a mass meeting of the citizens of the village has been called for next Wednesday night at the Tinley Park village hall at 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a Community Association. Everyone is invited to come out and help boost the project. This town has a future and it is up to the people in the community to boost their town. A live community club will be able to do much for the benefit of the community and every citizen should show enough interest in his town to attend the gathering as above mentioned. Let us all boost for Tinley Park and her welfare.

Big Klux Program At St. John Church Mokena Next Sun.

The Ku Klux Klans of Mokena and Frankfort are going to put on a big program at the St. John Evangelical church in Mokena on this coming Sunday night and the public in general regardless of any religious faith or creed are heartily invited to attend. Services in the Marley church as well as the M. E. church in Mokena will be dispensed with to enable their congregations to take in this program set to begin at 7:30 o'clock and will be as follows:

Song "America" by Congregation. Prayer by Rev. Wm. Kreis of the St. John Evan. church Mokena. Remarks by the same pastor. Selection by mixed Quartet of the St. John Church of Mokena. Address by Rev. A. R. Mangus of the Mokena M. E. church. Selection by the male Quartet of Frankfort.

Address by Rev. A. L. Brown of the Marley Community church. Duet by Mrs. Harry Mall and Miss Freida Zumstein of Mokena. Address by Rev. B. T. Duncan of the Frankfort M. E. church. Selection by Frankfort Male Quartet.

Offeratory. Song "Onward Christian Soldiers." Benediction by Rev. Wm. Kreis.

AUGUST HENTSCH AGAIN IN RACE FOR SCHOOL DIRECTOR

August Hensch of Mokena has announced himself a candidate for the office of school director of the Mokena public school. The school election will be held in April. Mr. Hensch ran for the same office last year but was defeated. He says this year he is going to put on a good pair of rubbers so he can run well without slipping.

His town to attend the gathering as above mentioned. Let us all boost for Tinley Park and her welfare.

A community club will be able to do much for the public school as well as for the development of the village. Let us put the proposition over in a big way. The News-Bulletin heartily endorses the idea as it knows what community clubs and community centers are doing for other towns.

Keeping Faith

This Bank loses no opportunity to insure its customers the utmost in safety for the money entrusted to its care.

Year after year, public confidence in this institution has grown until, today, hundreds of people of the community are depositing their savings with us.

—And their confidence is justified, for throughout its existence, eternal vigilance and sound judgement have been exercised to guard its customers' interests; to gain and retain their confidence.

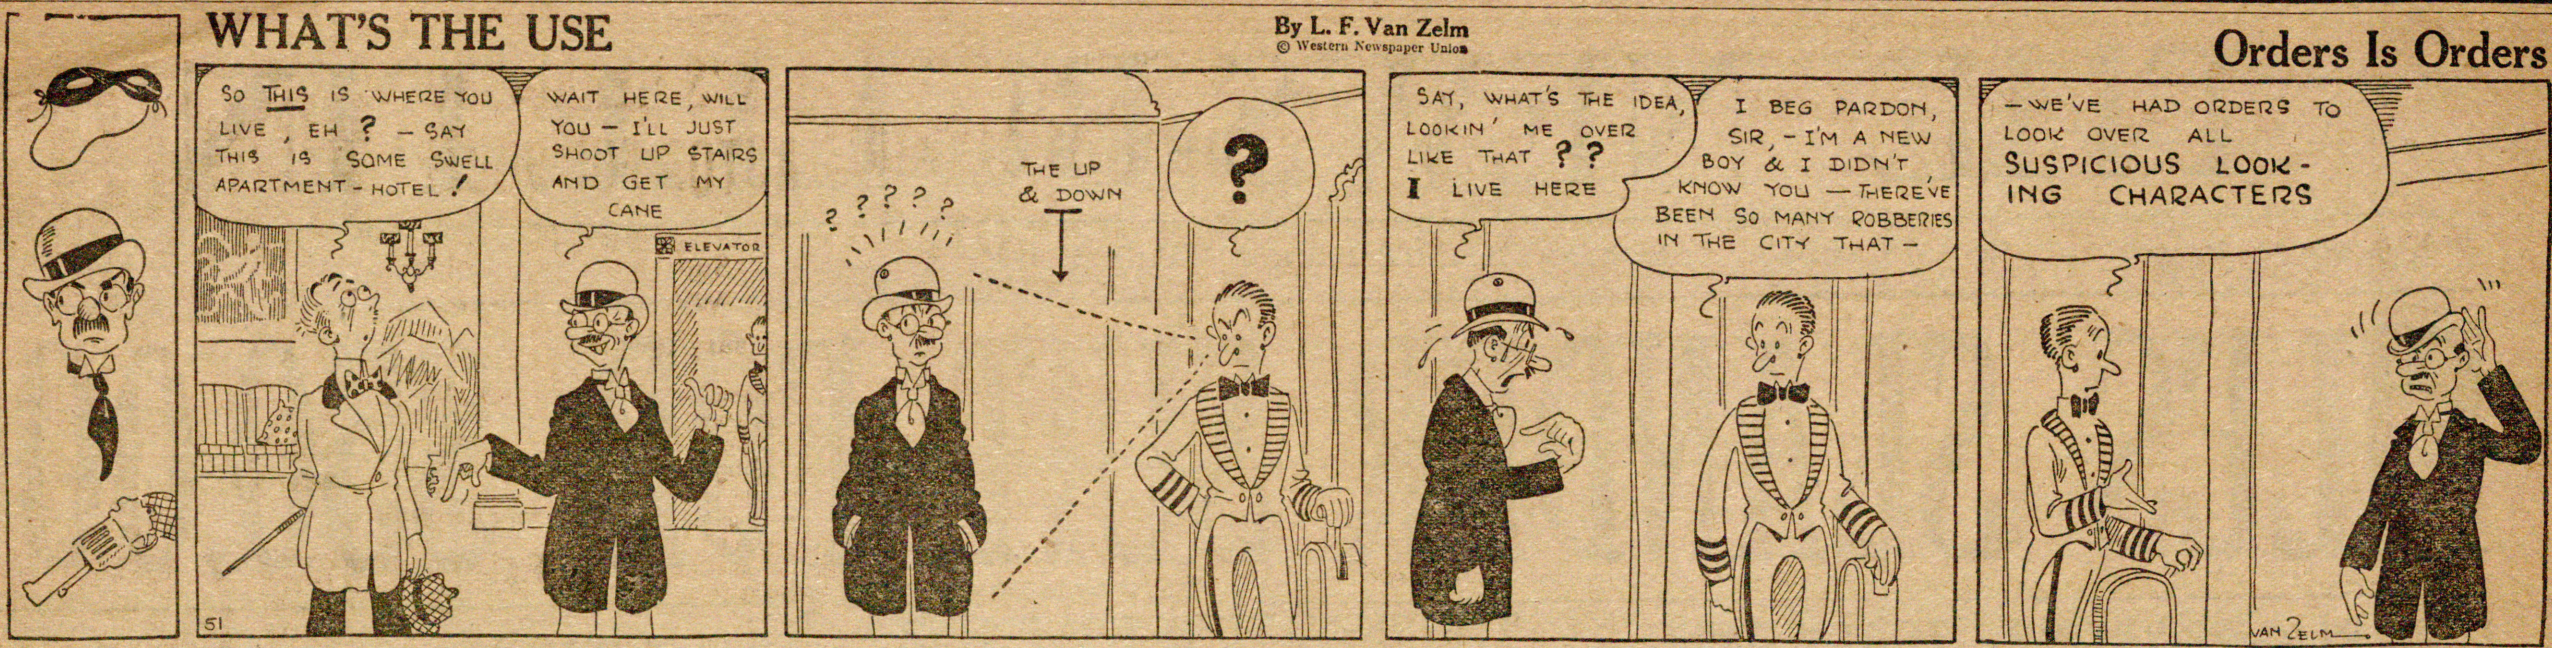

—And if we can make the strength, safety and service of this Bank a by-word in the community, we shall have realized our aim and ambition.

POISONING FROM HAIR DYES

ALL of man's (and especially woman's) efforts to be more beautiful are accompanied by danger.

I have told you about the danger of lead poisoning from face powders; of possible suffocation of infants from talcum powders; and of the irritating effect on the skin of some forms of rouge. Hair dyes, like all other artificial beauty improvers, are not free from danger. In a recent issue of the British Medical Journal, a number of cases of poisoning from the use of hair dyes are reported. One man, the proprietor of a hair-dressing establishment, came to his doctor for examination. He felt ill and weak; his face was gray and blotchy; his eyes were watery and bloodshot; his tongue and gums were swollen; he was nauseated and had no appetite; and he had severe pain in his stomach and between his shoulders. He said that he applied hair dye for his customers, putting it on without wearing gloves, and was exposed all day to the fumes from the dyes. Analysis of the hair dyes which he used showed that they contained lead and arsenic.

These substances are also frequently found in the dyes used for staining furs. They have an irritating effect on the skin, often causing an eruption on the necks of women, especially during the fall and winter months when furs are most worn.

The possibility of poisoning from hair dyes has led to the passage of laws in several states forbidding the use of lead, arsenic or any other injurious substance in any hair dye which is offered for sale.

Be as beautiful as you can but don't risk your life or your health. If you regard gray hair as a crown of honor and don't mind the increasing whiteness of your locks, then you don't need to worry about any possibility of poisoning. But if you can't endure the natural results of age and feel that you must cover up the marks of time, do it with some preparation that will restore the color of your youth without doing any harm to your body.

Anyway, if you eat simple and easily digested foods, drink plenty of pure water, exercise every day, and sleep in the open air, you will have so much natural color in your cheeks that you won't care whether you have any on top of your head or not. The coloring which nature uses is not only harmless, but it is also much more beautiful and attractive than anything you can buy in a bottle.

HALF A CENTURY OF PUBLIC HEALTH

OUR present ideas about health and the prevention of disease are about fifty years old. While the first state health department in this country was organized in Massachusetts in 1869, most of the state health departments and many of the larger city departments were organized in the early 70's. Before that time the prevention of disease and the preservation of health was largely left to the individual, just as a hundred years ago, even in our large cities, the prevention and suppression of fires was in the hands of volunteer fire departments.

Public health is about fifty years old in the United States. What has it accomplished and are the results of sufficient value to justify the expense?

In the first ten years, from 1880 to 1890, the germs of pneumonia, typhoid fever, malaria, tuberculosis, Asiatic cholera, erysipelas, diphtheria, tetanus or lockjaw, and meningitis were discovered. Since that time there have been added the germs of bubonic plague, dysentery, syphilis, whooping cough, yellow fever, and scarlet fever. These discoveries led to the purification of water and milk supplies with a tremendous reduction in typhoid fever, dysentery, and other diseases carried by water; to the control of diseases carried by insects, such as yellow fever, bubonic plague and malaria; to the discovery of diphtheria antitoxin, by which the number of deaths from this disease have been greatly reduced.

The result has been an enormous reduction in the death rate all over the country. In 1880, 42 years ago, the average death rate for the United States was nearly 20 per 1,000 each year. In 1922, it was only 11, about one-half the previous rate, a saving of eight deaths per 1,000 every year, or of over 800,000 a year for the entire country. In 1902, there were 34 deaths per 100,000 in the United States from typhoid fever alone. Today, there are only seven, a reduction of nearly four-fifths. In 1903, the death rate from tuberculosis in this country was 184 out of every 100,000. In 1922, the death rate was 97—about one-half what it had been 20 years before.

And the fight against disease is only beginning. Enough has been accomplished in the last 50 years, in actual results, to justify every cent of money that has been expended.

Pain's Positive Value

Pain in itself is not without its alleviations. It is seldom both violent and long-continued; and its pauses and intermissions become positive pleasures. It has the power of shedding a satisfaction over intervals of ease which few enjoyments exceed.—Paley

Paul, the Pattern

By REV. GEORGE E. GUILLE
Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—Howbeit for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might show forth all long-suffering, for a pattern to them which should hereafter believe on him to life everlasting.—1 Tim. 1:16.

The conversion of this upright religionist was a pattern. Doubtless he speaks of it here primarily as a pattern for the conversion of Israel in future days. It was unique. Not by the hearing of the gospel and believing it—God's only method now—but by the appearing of Christ in His glory. And thus at Christ's return when, as it is written, "They shall look upon me whom they have pierced," all Israel shall be saved.

But it is no less a pattern for all Christians, and every genuine conversion corresponds with it still.

Abundant Grace.

It is a pattern of the infinite grace that Christ is showing to all that "believe on him unto life everlasting."

At the moment of his most thorough hatred of all that pertained to Christ, Saul of Tarsus was suddenly arrested. "Breathing out threatenings and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord," and bearing letters of authority from the high priest to hale into prison all Jews that he found confessing Christ's name—then Christ appeared with His loving rebuke and His forgiving grace. "And," said Paul, "the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ was exceeding abundant with faith and love which is in Christ Jesus. This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief." Hatred and violence met with abundant grace! Threatenings and slaughter met with forgiving love! Persecution of Christ met with His merciful forgiveness!

Face to face with the risen, exalted Christ—this is salvation for upright Pharisee, as for the vilest of men. With all Saul's morality and religion—and he writes these up in Philipians, saying with no vain boasting, "If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he might trust in the flesh, I more"—he was lost without Christ. The "chief of sinners" was saved and changed into an apostle of the Lord, to show to all men everywhere for all time what that grace can do. There can be but one "chief" of sinners, and if grace has saved him, it is sufficient for all the others.

Transforming Grace.

How sudden and radical the change effected in the proud Pharisee by that transforming vision. One moment "breathing out threatenings and slaughter" and the next moment breathing out his soul in humble devotion, owning the Lordship of Him whom but now he persecuted: "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do? Hatred and violence changed in a twinkling to love and enlistment in His blessed service.

"When I could not see for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with me," he said later, on the castle stairs in Jerusalem, to the mob clamoring for his blood. Blinded by the vision of that blessed face! O soul, hast thou seen Him? Who that has really done so, with faith's inward vision, has not been blinded to all the glories of the world and eager henceforth to be led, no longer choosing nor desiring his own way?

All Things Loss.

Transformed, too, is Paul's thinking! "But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ. Yea, doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord: for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung . . . that I may know HIM!" The excellency of the knowledge of Christ! This is the divine reckoning. The wisdom of the world laughs at it, but they that are in the secret have found that to know Him is to find their heaven begun. What is foolishness to the unregenerate is highest wisdom to the heart that can say with this apostle, "Have not I seen Jesus Christ, our Lord?"

Prayer and Trust

Prayer, said Phillips Brooks, is the experience in which ideals are born. Sincere prayer brings a person to his highest peak of worth. When pouring his heart forth to God his spirit is most sensitive to the Divine Spirit. So it is that God's will for character and career is often most clearly felt and seen in the very moments of prayer. There flash upon us at such times glimpses of our possible selves. Oh, when shall we learn the sweet trust in God that our little children teach us every day by their confiding faith in us? We, who are so mutable, so faulty, so irritable, so unjust; and He, who is so watchful, so pitiful, so loving, so forgiving! Why cannot we, slipping our hand in His each day, walk trustingly over that day's appointed path, thorny or flowery, crooked or straight, knowing that evening will bring us sleep, peace and home?

Lesson for March 8

THE SAVIOR ON THE CROSS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 23:33-46.
GOLDEN TEXT—"He that spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, how shall He not with Him also freely give us all things?"—Rom. 8:32.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Forgives His Enemies.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Savior on the Cross.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Crucifixion of Christ.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ Died for Our Sins.

This lesson brings us face to face with the greatest tragedy of all times. No record in the annals of history approaches it; it is the very climax of all history. Though unique in its blackness, from it flows streams of liberty and life for all the world. It is highly important that every teacher have personal experience of Christ's death for himself, and then get his pupils to see that Christ's death was instead of their own death.

I. The Place of Crucifixion (v. 33).

They led him away to Calvary, a hill north of Jerusalem, resembling a skull. "Calvary" is the Latin word and "Golgotha" is the Hebrew. This is a most significant name for the place where man's redemption was accomplished. The skull is an apt picture of man's condition as the result of sin—life and intelligence are gone, leaving only the dark, empty cavern which once contained them.

II. His Companions on the Cross (v. 33).

Two malefactors were crucified with Him. Their names are not given. This is a fulfillment of the Scriptures. "He was numbered with the transgressors" (Isa. 53:12).

III. His Forgiving Love (v. 34).

He cried, "Father forgive them." He doubtless had in mind not only the soldiers who acted for the government, but the Jews, who, in their blindness, were ignorant of the enormity of their crime.

IV. The World Revealed (vv. 34-43).

Jesus Christ on the cross is the supreme touchstone of human life, and discloses the world's heart. Take a cross-section of the world at any time since Christ was crucified, and representatives of the various classes therein were found around Jesus on the cross.

1. The Covetous (v. 34).

They gambled for His seamless robe right under the cross where He was dying. This represents those whose primary interest in Christ is a means to get gain.

2. The Indifferent (v. 35).

"The people stood beholding." They gazed upon Him with indifference. The great mass of the world gaze upon the crucified Christ with stolid indifference.

3. The Scoffers (vv. 35-39).

(1) The rulers reviled Him for His claim to be the Savior. They wanted a Savior, but not a crucified Savior. Many today are religious, but have only contempt for a salvation which centers in an atonement made by blood.

(2) The soldiers reviled Him for claiming to be a king. The title, "King of the Jews," had been placed over Him in bitter irony, but it was true for, by right of the Davidic covenant, He shall be one day King over Israel (II Sam. 7:16). The fact that the superscription was in Greek, Hebrew and Latin shows that he was to be king over all the world.

(3) The Impenitent Malefactor (v. 39).

This brutal man joined in reviling the Savior, even though he was under condemnation.

4. The Penitent Malefactor (vv. 40-43).

The conscious sinner who discerned the heart of the Savior prayed for mercy. The man confessed his sin against God and cried to Jesus for salvation. He saw that the dying One was the forgiving God. The fact that he acknowledged his sin showed that he was penitent. His request that Christ remember him when He came into His kingdom shows that he recognized that the One who was dying on the cross was making atonement for sin, and that He would come to reign as King. His salvation was immediate. Christ said, "Today shalt thou be with me in Paradise."

V. The Death of Christ (vv. 44-46).

So shocking was the crime that nature herself threw around the Son of God a shroud to hide Him from the godless crowd. When the price of sin was paid He cried with a loud voice, showing that He still had vitality, that His death was not through exhaustion, but by His sovereign will.

In This Life

It is in this life alone we can learn lessons of patience and self-denial, for there are no sick-beds to watch by, no sufferers to soothe, no mourners to comfort in the mansions of the Father's house.—George MacDonald.

Foundation of Peace

The Divine benediction is pronounced upon peacemakers. But then peace, to be of value, must be permanent; and to be permanent it must be founded on sound principles.

O. K.'S SEARCHING AUTOS FOR BOOZE

U. S. Supreme Court Holds
No Warrant Is Necessary to Hunt Rum.

Washington.—Federal prohibition agents may lawfully stop automobiles and other vehicles and search them for contraband liquor without a warrant, the Supreme court decided in a case from Michigan, brought by George Carroll and John Kiro.

In another liquor case decision, brought from Georgia by Sig Samuels, the court held that states may, under the Constitution, make unlawful the possession of liquor acquired legally before enactment of the federal prohibition act.

Chief Justice Taft delivered the opinions, Justices McReynolds and Sutherland dissenting in the former, and Justice Butler in the latter.

It was the intent of congress to make a distinction between the necessity for a search warrant in the searching of private dwellings and of automobiles, the chief justice stated, and that distinction was constitutional. There is no provision in the Constitution which denounces all searches or seizures without a warrant, he said, adding that it prohibits only "unreasonable" searches or seizures.

The rule to be applied in determining the legality of a seizure without a warrant, as laid down by the court, is whether the seizing officer has reasonable or probable cause for believing the automobile has contraband liquor in it which is being illegally transported. This is ample protection to the individual, in the opinion of the court.

Carroll and Kiro had been negotiating with federal enforcement agents for the sale of liquor, and the court held there was ample justification for the stopping and searching of their automobile near Grand Rapids, Mich., without a warrant.

In the Georgia case it had been shown that Samuels had placed in his cellar liquor lawfully obtained before the passage of the prohibition law, and before the state of Georgia made possession of intoxicating liquor unlawful. Chief Justice Taft asserted that states could make unlawful the possession of such liquor even though it was permitted by the Eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act.

Clark, Last of Copper Kings Dies in Gotham

New York.—Ex-Senator William A. Clark, eighty-six years of age, last of the Montana copper "kings," and rated as one of the richest men in the world died at his Fifth avenue mansion. He was a victim of pneumonia. His death came within twenty-four hours of the announcement that his daughter, Mrs. Mary Clark Kling, had become the secret bride of Marius De Brabant of Los Angeles.

Mr. Clark died in the magnificent home where he had amassed an art collection valued at $3,000,000, to which he admitted the public occasionally.

Farmer's boy, school teacher, law student, miner, prospector, banker and art collector, Mr. Clark was the last of that picturesque group including Marcus Daly, F. Augustus Heinze and Senator George Hearst, who wrested a fortune from Montana copper.

Seven Persons Killed in Canada by Quake

Quebec.—The earthquake which shook the eastern half of the United States, including Chicago, is charged with seven deaths in Quebec and the St. Lawrence river district of Canada. One death was in this city. Five occurred at points along the south shore of the St. Lawrence, where people are reported to have been killed either from shock or from falling chimneys. The seventh was at St. Anne de la Parade, about seventy miles from here, where an aged woman died from shock.

The point where the quake is believed to have been most severe is at St. Paul's bay, sixty miles below Quebec, where the earth is reported to have "shimmied" for twenty-five minutes.

The Roman Catholic church there was wrecked and many homes were demolished.

Negro Burned at Stake for Attack on Georgia Girl

Rocky Ford, Ga.—An unidentified negro who confessed to attacking a fourteen-year-old girl near here was lynched. He was burned at the stake.

He was brought back to the scene of his crime and identified by his victim. He was carried into a field where brush and wood were piled about his manacled form and gasoline was applied to his clothing and the wood set on fire.

So rapidly is the poultry industry expanding that within a short time over production may cut the farmer's poultry dollar unless production can be maintained at a lower cost, according to the Sears-Roebuck Agricultural Foundation. A recent survey shows that more than 5,000,000 farms in this country produce poultry and eggs. It is estimated that there were 491,000,000 chickens on farms before the hatching season started. This is an increase of over 50,000,000, or nearly 12 per cent over figures of a year ago and 121,000,000, or over 32 per cent increase since January 1, 1920.

Production of eggs increased 33.3 per cent between 1920 and 1923 while the population increased only 5.3 per cent. In the past five years the estimates of egg production have shown a close correlation with the estimated number of chickens on hand at the beginning of the year, the ratio being 4.6 dozens per fowl. If the same ratio holds good, egg production in 1924 will gain 10 to 12 per cent over 1923 when it showed a gain of 33 per cent over four years ago.

Profitable poultry production at the present stage of expansion is dependent upon the present high level of demand. Up to date consumption has kept pace with production. In 1923 enough eggs were produced to furnish 20 dozen for every man, woman and child in the United States. This would mean 100 dozen for the average family of five.

TINLEY PARK

William Siebrandt who has been running a farm in North Dakota, has decided to try farming in Illinois and the forepart of the week he came here with his family and also had three carloads of stock and farm machinery shipped in. He has moved on the old Siebrandt farm southeast of Tinley Park.

Henry Siebrandt moved the past week on the Klinger farm between Tinley Park and Matteson.

Bert Fulton tax collector for the town of Bremen has received his tax books and is now busy collecting taxes.

The 500 club met at the Henry Bruggemann home Monday night. The usual good time is reported. The Ladies Aid Society of the Zion Lutheran church was entertained in monthly session at the home of Mrs. Fred Goebel Wednesday afternoon.

Geo. Schreiber, our popular shoe man attended a convention of The Shoe Rebuilders held in the Coliseum Annex, Chicago on Saturday night.

From present indications Tinley Park will have a real estate boom this spring and summer. The Reuter Realty Co., of Chicago are going to boom their sub-division on the south side of the village on the concrete road. A number of lots have already been sold.

The sale of Kench & Krohn held Monday was well attended. John Cappel of Mokena bought 14 head of cattle out of a herd of 18 head.

Mrs. C. Gotsel & Sons are preparing for the spring business in the farm implement line and got in a carload of farm machinery the past week.

Louis Lippincott who has been ill is able to be about again.

The Tinley Park Boy Scouts who have been inactive during the winter months are planning for renewed activities this spring and summer.

The McIntosh Realty Co. of Chicago have staked out a number of building lots at Oak Forest and a decided building boom is in view. Val. H. Scheer, local concrete block manufacturer has been given a contract for furnishing the blocks for a number of the new buildings to be erected.

A special election will be held at the Tinley Park school on Saturday night of this week to vote on the question "Shall the board of directors of School District 146, sell the old frame school building?"

A drainage election will be held at the home of Harry Brandau on March 14th.

TAXES ARE NOW DUE

By special arrangement with the Bremen State Bank at Tinley Park taxpayers of Bremen township can pay their taxes direct at the bank any day in the week until the tax time limit is up.

What to Do For A Persistent Cough

Everybody knows how foolish and dangerous it is to let a cough hang on and on. The proper thing to do is to stop it—quick—and for this purpose there is nothing better than that great old home remedy that our parents and grandparents used so successfully—Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey. It often relieves a severe cough overnight. Doctors say there is really nothing like pine tar to quickly loosen and remove the phlegm and congestion which are the direct cause of the coughing, while the honey not only gives a pleasant taste but helps soothe the soreness and irritation. But be sure you get the genuine Dr. Bell's Pine Tar Honey and not some substitute. Dr. Bell's is the original, and has been known for many years as the best. It is scientifically compounded of just the right proportions of pine tar, honey and other quick-acting ingredients, which the best doctors have found to aid in bringing quick relief. Contains no opiates or other harmful drugs, so can be given even to young children—fine for spasmodic croup. If you want the best home remedy in the drug store, get Dr. Bell's, 50c at all good drug stores.

Doubtful Recommendation.
A London newspaper contains an advertisement of an old English house to be sold, which begins in the familiar style—"Twelve bedrooms, four sitting rooms, paneled dining room, large nooks, dower chests," etc., and suddenly breaks off from the catalog of ancient blessings with this modernism: "But, owing to electric light, no ghosts." One hardly knows whether this exception will add to or detract from the "pulling" power of the announcement.—Outlook.

WLS TO BUILD NEW GIANT RADIO STATION.

Erection of a new 5000-watt super-power radio broadcasting station to replace the 500-watt equipment now in use has been announced by Radio Station WLS, Chicago according to word received here. The new station is to be built in the open country to avoid interference with other Chicago broadcasts, and the sending towers will probably be erected within 50 miles of Chicago. This new station is to include all the latest devices known to present-day science.

GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY REPORT GIVEN.

The children of American Sunday Schools were given credit for having saved the Armenian nation as well as the ancient Nestorian church of Assyria, by Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief. The appeal of last December 7th which was marked as Golden Rule Sunday, netted the Near East Relief over one million dollars besides developing a spirit of brotherhood thruout the country.

WORTH

The young boys of the Worth Sunday school have organized a Boy Scout Club and are planning a hike for March 21. Three cheers for the Beaver Patrol!

The M. E. church services as conducted by Rev. Paul T. Sanders are making a fine impression and the feeling is that Worth is to be congratulated on having such a live wire clergyman in its midst. Remember "Go to church Sunday" at 10 o'clock.

Worth now is rid of all stray dogs that formerly roamed about our streets as the result of being scared out of town Monday night when a party of men and boys celebrated Harold Levin's wedding. When the money part came around Harold was a real HE man.

A Wabash fast passenger train while traveling 60 miles an hour had a narrow escape from being wrecked Monday night when five steel tires came off the wheels as the train was crossing the canal bridge. Luckily no one was hurt.

Mr. George Rust is starting an ice cream parlor, also a lunch counter. Good luck George.

Olof Lygen is completing the house he is building for O. Johnson.

It is understood that Worth has bought a fire engine which cost $6,500. Thanks to the Booster Club, who helped in putting this big improvement and protection over.

Today.

There is a thing called yesterday, but that is only the dust-bin at the door, into which we cast our refuse, our failures, our worn-out souls. There is a thing called tomorrow, bursting with far better things than those which we have discarded. But in today the whole passionate force of the universe is poured—and therefore today is marvellous.—S. P. B. Mals.

Farm Progress

Result of Tests

Thirty-Eight Years of Research Show Results.

Significant progress in Illinois farming was greatly stimulated by the establishment of a state agricultural experiment station at the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, 38 years ago, in the opinion of H. W. Mumford, present dean of the college and director of its agricultural experiment station, who has watched the trend of farming in the state for more than a score of years. A record of the great forward strides which Illinois agriculture has made during these 38 years is to be found in the accomplishments and far-reaching discoveries which the experiment station has made since it was started almost two score years ago.

For instance, the dairy department alone has been responsible for enough new discoveries and facts to bring about almost revolutionary changes in farming, and yet this department is only one of the six major ones of the college. Among other things this one department devised a method for condensing buttermilk, a method which is now widely used. Just recently it has worked out a system for making buttermilk out of skim milk. Details of this method have not yet been made public, but the method is expected to prove useful and will make it possible to conserve skim milk, which is now frequently wasted.

During the sugar shortage the department devised a method for conserving sugar in the manufacture of ice cream. This method was widely used in commercial ice cream plants during the war.

The department also has shown the value of sunflowers as a silage crop for dairy cattle. This information is extremely valuable to farmers located in sections where good corn cannot be grown, due either to drought or insect pests.

Information that has been valuable both to milk producers and milk distributors has been developed by the department in the studies which it has made on the relation between the care of milk utensils and the germ content of milk.

Valuable Dairy Work.

Chief among the accomplishments of the dairy department is the pioneer work which it did as early as 1896 in showing the difference in value of individual dairy cows. In connection with this work, the experiment station of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, was the first agricultural experiment station to work out in dollars and cents the economic meaning of the difference in the production of cows and put it in such a comprehensive manner that it had a practical application to every dairy farm.

An idea of the importance of this economic study to farmers and dairymen of the state can be gained from some of the facts which were discovered. Among other things it was found that, under ordinary farm conditions, the cow producing 5,000 pounds of milk and 200 pounds of fat in a year makes her owner about one-fourth as much profit as the cow producing 8,000 pounds of milk and 320 pounds of fat. In other words, a 60 per cent increase in production meant a 400 per cent increase in profits.

As a result of this research work and the educational campaign which followed it, the greatly increased value of the good dairy cow over the poor producer has become obvious. It is now universally accepted and taken as the foundation of all profitable dairy farming.

After dairymen generally became convinced of the advantages of high-producing cows over low-producing ones, there was still another problem to be solved. Good dairy cows could not be bought in large enough numbers at a reasonable price to supply the demand and many farmers said that they could not afford to raise heifer calves even from their best cows, because it took too much milk. Research work then was started to determine the minimum amount of milk required to raise a calf successfully and how this milk should be fed. It was found, after experimenting with the feeding of many calves, that they could be raised successfully on 150 pounds of whole milk and 400 pounds of skim milk if this was fed in the first 60 days of their life and careful attention given to the proper feeding of grain and hay.

Prove Value of Good Blood.

The value of pure-bred sires was stressed along with other points in the educational campaign which was carried out in connection with all this work. Among other things it was brought out that calves take their qualities from both parents, thereby making it just as important to have good blood on the sire side as to have good cows.

Cows kept at present in the dairy region are largely grades of the leading dairy breeds and, as a result of the years of research and educational work done by the experiment station of the college of agriculture, University of Illinois, the animals are now far superior to those kept 28 years ago.

All other phases of Illinois farming are being benefited in like manner by the extensive work which the agronomy, horticulture, animal husbandry, farm mechanics and farm organization and management departments of the experiment station are doing.

High Spots In Coolidge Speech

By Don C. Hall

Cool, Calm and Calculating—CALVIN COOLIDGE.

Fair, Outspoken and Firm—CHARLES DAWES.

Those are the chief characteristics of the President and Vice President of the United States, into whose hands the reigns of Government were placed on Mar. 4, 1925.

Possibly in the most impressive and comprehensive grouping of words for the soulful expression of thought and purpose ever uttered by any President elect in the history of Inaugural ceremonies, President Calvin Coolidge, after taking the oath of office, outlined his attitude in relation to our Foreign and Domestic affairs.

Clear, concise, capable, with an evidence of honest convictions and determination, prompting every utterance. In well modulated tones with perfect diction and enunciation, and an expression of sentiment which called for frequent and spontaneous applause. The President contributed another gem of the spoken word which will live for generations in the memories of the American people. The entire address was an harmonious classic. Faith, belief, trust and confidence in the Supreme Power of God to prosper the right, gave to the speech the salt and savor, which emphasized the fact, that with such a leader the franchise of true American citizens has not been exercised in vain.

To get the meat and substance of this remarkable address it should be read and re-read in its entirety. Some of the outstanding sentiments audience which "listened in" were as follows:

HOPE OF THE FUTURE
"Because of what America is and what America has done a firmer courage, a higher hope, inspires the heart of all humanity."

MAN'S HUMANITY TO MAN

"The physical configuration of the earth has separated us from all the old world, but the common brotherhood of man, the highest law of all our being, has united us by inseparable bonds with all humanity."

"Our country represents nothing but peaceful intentions toward all the earth, but it ought not to fail to maintain such a military force as conforms with the dignity and security of a great people. It ought to be a balanced force, intensely modern, capable of defense by sea and land, beneath the surface and in the air."

"But it should be so conducted that all the world may see in it not a menace but an instrument of security and peace."

TRUE AMERICANISM
"We believe that we can best serve our own country and most successfully discharge our obligations to humanity by continuing to be openly and candidly, intensely and scrupulously, American."

WITHOUT PREJUDICE OR SUSPICION

"If we expect others to rely on our fairness and justice we must show that we rely on their fairness and justice."

RELYING IN GOD
"Parchment will fail, the sword will fail, it is only the spiritual nature of man that can be triumphant."

PARTISANSHIP MUST NOT PREVENT FREEDOM

"There is no salvation in a narrow and bigoted partisanship."

ECONOMY

"No matter what others may want, these people want a drastic economy. They are opposed to waste. They know that extravagance lengthens the hours and diminishes the rewards of their labor."

"I favor the policy of economy, not because I wish to save money but because I wish to save people."

"The men and women of this country who toil and are the ones who bear the cost of the govern-

MOKENA

COUNTY ADVISER WARNS AGAINST FOWL PEST

J. Franklin Hedgecock, Adviser of the Will County Farm Bureau has sent the out notice bearing on the European Fowl Pest that has broken out in Will County. This fowl pest is situated east of Collins Street and north of William Street in the outskirts of Joliet and is confined to the small back yard flocks.

Dr. C. H. Spangler has been appointed in charge of the outbreak by Dr. F. E. Laird, State Veterinarian. Dr. Spangler is working the territory hard and it is expected that this outbreak will be stamped out in a short time Dr. Laird does not plan to quarantine the county if this outbreak can be stamped out before it gets out of the city.

All people of the county should watch their flocks and if the poultry becomes sick and begins to die off rapidly they should notify the Farm Bureau office immediately so that this disease can be looked in to and not spread over the county any further than possible. Every one must co-operate in a case of this kind because the European Fowl Pest is a very disastrous disease to the poultry and wipes them off by the hundred when it gets in to a flock.

UNIVERSAL PORCELAIN COAL RANGE

Holiday and Special Meals are Always a Success with the Universal Range

Have you ever put hours of effort on a meal only to see your utmost care defeated by a faulty range?

What a difference a modern, dependable range like the Universal makes! It enables you to cook with absolute assurance, to easily regulate the cooking temperatures, to bake perfectly and to give your family delicious, well-cooked meals every day in the week.

Have you ever spent hours of blackening and polishing in order to make your range look like when you first purchased it?

The Universal requires no blackening or rubbing—it can always be bright and new looking—just wipe it off! This permanent, "Univert" Porcelain finish will not peel or discolor from heat. Grease has no effect upon it.

Your Old Stove Taken as Part Payment

To induce hundreds of women to attend our display, we are offering special terms all this week. For example, we take your old stove as first payment, then you can take a whole year to pay the balance. Installation free. Come tomorrow if possible.

Must Discard Clothing

Europeans and Americans who want to travel or study in the tropics must get over the bashfulness of going without clothes, according to Prof. P. F. Tyson of Berhampore, Bengal. The tropics will never be colonized by Americans or Europeans until they decide to live with the native dress. Clothing, he maintains, interferes with the natural regulating action of the skin and makes it impossible for the northerners to stand the climate.

"THEN HELP ME!"

SYNOPSIS.—Nurses in the Southern hospital at Avonmouth are angered by the insolent treatment accorded them by Dr. John Lancaster, head of the institution, and there is a general feeling of unrest, into which Joan Wentworth, probationary nurse, is drawn. Doctor Lancaster is performing a difficult operation, for which he has won fame. Joan, with other nurses, is in attendance. She is upset, through no fault of her own, and makes a trivial blunder at a critical moment. The patient dies and Doctor Lancaster accuses her of clumsiness. She is suspended, the action meaning the end of her hope of a career as a nurse. Without relatives or friends, and desperate, Joan, urged by her landlady, goes to Doctor Lancaster's office to ask him to overlook her blunder and reinstate her. She overhears a violent altercation between Doctor Lancaster and other men she does not see. Joan is struck by the favorable change in the appearance and demeanor of the doctor, recalling that at times in the hospital he has been gentle and thoughtful and at others supercilious and bullying. He tells her he can do nothing for her at the hospital, but offers her a position in a nursing institution in the country, telling her she can be of "great assistance" to him. A man named Myers demands she tell him what the doctor had said to her. She denies him the information, and he covertly threatens her. At the institution, which is owned by Doctor Lancaster, Joan finds Myers. He tells her he is the secretary. She instinctively dislikes and fears him. The only patient at the institution is a Mrs. Dana, a domineering but harmless. Joan is vaguely uneasy, feeling that there is some mystery about the place.

"I thought I heard an auto drive up to the institute last night."

Myers looked at her in the same manner. "The doctor came back last night unexpectedly," he said.

"But I thought Doctor Jenkins lived at Millville?"

"Not Jenkins, Miss Wentworth. Doctor Lancaster."

"Why," stammered the girl, "I must have misunderstood, then. I hope Doctor Lancaster is not ill. He was looking unwell when I saw him the day before yesterday."

"That's just what you might have told me when I asked you about him," said Myers triumphantly. "Well, Miss Wentworth, if you are going to ask me questions I suppose I can ask you questions."

"If I can answer them."

"Precisely," said the other. "I want to know if you can answer them. Now let's be frank. What do you know about all this?"

"I beg your pardon?" Joan inquired, declining his invitation to seat herself beside him.

"About all this," repeated Myers. "Come, now, you know what I mean as well as I do. How did Doctor Lancaster come to engage you?"

"If you have really a right to know, Mr. Myers," said Joan, "you had better ask Doctor Lancaster himself."

"O, all right," said Myers huffily. "Only the time will come when you'll wish you'd been frank with me. If we put all our cards on the table we can have a frank look into the situation."

"Really, Mr. Myers, I had no idea that I had come to a gambling house," said Joan, more nettled by the familiarity of his tone than by the words. "I have no cards at all, as you term it. I am simply an employee of Doctor Lancaster, and if that is not satisfactory to you I must refer you to him."

Myers grew red. His short, stocky figure with the wide shoulders looked abominably mean as he planted himself upon the porch and surveyed Joan with a furtive, sneering expression. He was not in any sense a gentleman, just a low class of bully, as Joan could plainly see from his gestures, even if his next words had not made this plain.

"So that's your attitude, is it?" he said, jerking out the words between his teeth. "All right, Miss Wentworth, you and I will play our hands separately. Don't come to me afterward, though, and say I didn't warn you. And if you don't like my ways and speech, and think I'm too ordinary for your taste—here comes the doctor! Go and make a complaint about me!"

Joan, turning from the man in disgust, saw Lancaster standing at the door. She went toward him, and then she looked at him in consternation. For Lancaster was undeniably ill. His face was a dead white, and he was leaning on a stick, as if to support himself.

"Doctor Lancaster—" Joan began. He straightened himself with an effort, held out his hand and took her own. "I am very glad you came, Miss Wentworth," he said. "I hope you like the institute?"

Myers, who had come up and planted himself between them, flung out his challenge.

"She likes the institute all right, doctor," he said, with a short laugh, "but I reckon she don't like me. Bad taste, I call it. What do you say, doctor?"

There was an indescribable insolence in the man's tone. Joan looked for one of Lancaster's explosions of flaming wrath. But to her amazement none came. He seemed struggling to control himself. He flushed and looked from one to the other.

"Well, well, Myers," he said, hesitating, "I think things will turn out all right. Miss Wentworth and you won't conflict in any way. You mustn't quarrel, you know. I want all my employees to like each other," he ended weakly.

And he gave Joan the impression of pitiful impotence, as if he were somehow in the secretary's power and had surrendered his will to him—Lancaster, the tyrant of the Southern hospital, the smug bully of the operating theater! Joan saw a flash of triumph in Myers' eyes, and, with another laugh, the man left them and went into the building.

"I think breakfast is ready, Miss Wentworth," said Lancaster, after a moment, offering the girl his arm.

But Joan gave him hers instead, and they went together into the dining room.

She was glad to see that Myers was not to eat with them. Hungry as she was, she could not have taken breakfast in the man's presence; and even now she could hardly manage to eat, with Lancaster, so evidently ill, seated opposite her, swallowing gulps of hot coffee, and making pretense of eating thin strips of toast. His whole demeanor was that of a very ill man. And the transformation terrified her. All her preconceived ideas of him had vanished. She could make nothing of him. She felt a deep sense of relief when the meal ended.

Then Lancaster looked at her with the same furtive expression that she read in the face of everybody there.

"I thought I would run up and see how the institute was getting along, Miss Wentworth," he said.

They had risen from the table. Joan turned and faced him. "Doctor Lancaster," she said, "you spend a good deal of your time here. There was nothing unexpected about your visit last night. You knew that you would come here when you employed me."

She must have spoken more angrily than she knew, for the web of deception was smothering her, and she felt that her position was becoming unendurable. For an instant a glimmer of amusement passed over the doctor's face.

"Why, Miss Wentworth, you are a regular spitfire," he said.

"It is true, then?"

"Well—yes, it is true. My work at Avonmouth is not too exacting for me to come here frequently."

"You knew you were coming, and you did not tell me. And you hinted at a patient requiring care. There is no patient, unless it is yourself. Doctor Lancaster, you engaged me for certain work here, and I am ready to fulfill it. It is not requisite that you should explain anything to me. But please give me the work you hired me to do, and do not try to deceive me."

Lancaster, who had been regarding her intently as she spoke, glanced hurriedly into the hall before replying. A look of fear had come into his eyes. Joan knew that it was Myers whom he feared. There was something dreadful in seeing this man cringe before the bully, this man who had, in turn, made others cringe before him.

"Miss Wentworth," said Lancaster in a low tone, "believe me, I have no intention of deceiving you. On the contrary, it is my wish to confide in you. Will you come out on the porch and permit me to smoke?"

She bowed, and they went out together. They took their seats upon two chairs at the end of the verandah, Joan purposely seating herself between her companion and the door. She knew why he kept glancing toward it.

"Miss Wentworth," Lancaster began, "we spoke of loyalty the other night. If you saw a human being in trouble of his own making, would it be your impulse to help him, or to leave him to fight his battle alone?"

"I should help him if I could," said Joan.

"Then help me," said Lancaster. "It was myself of whom I spoke to you. Will you help me with loyalty and sympathy, and refuse to be discouraged?"

The girl softened toward him; he was obviously sincere, and obviously distressed. "Gladly, Doctor Lancaster," she answered.

"I thought that I could trust you when I saw your face, and I was sure of it when you talked of your vocation. And I cannot trust anyone else. I have no opportunity—" he broke off irresolutely and then went on, "I have had no opportunity of taking up that matter with the board yet," he continued.

Joan knew that he was not speaking frankly now; but his next words were in the same tone of sincerity.

"Miss Wentworth, that matter and this is all bound up together. You must help me before I can help you, as I said to you when you came into the consulting room. I cannot explain any more now. I want help in the biggest fight of my life, and, if I fail, I want a witness that I have fought. I saw you and thought you would give me your help. For God's sake don't refuse me!"

In spite of his sincerity the idea flashed through Joan's mind that his troubles might be the fancies of a sick man.

"If I discharge you before the month is over, don't go. Refuse to go. Nobody can make you go. I am at the head of the institute. Ignore me. Stay!"

"I'll stay," said Joan, and then, looking at his white face and trembling hands, she thought she knew what was the matter with him.

"Listen, Doctor Lancaster," she began, laying her fingers on his arm. But then she saw that he was not looking at her. He was looking past her toward Myers, who was coming across the pasture toward the entrance. His expression was transformed.

"Miss Wentworth," he said, with a sudden change of tone, "what was I saying to you? I am not myself at all today. I have been greatly overworked, and talking nonsense. Don't remember it. I meant nothing at all. Of course you must remain your month, in case any patients come, and then we'll see what we can do about the position."

And, as Myers came up to them, the same hopeless, cringing expression came into his eyes.

The secretary ignored Joan completely. "Well, doctor," he said, "I have the quarterly statement ready for you. Won't you come and look over it? I must have your signature, and you know how hard it is to fasten you down."

"Yes, I'll come, certainly, Myers," said Lancaster, rising.

The two men went into the house together. Joan heard the door close behind them. She was left to ponder over that interview.

She was conscious of two conflicting impulses: to leave, and to remain for Lancaster's sake. There was something about the man's pitiable condition that aroused all her sympathies. But there was something about the whole place repulsive in the extreme.

She must get allies in this blind fight against the secretary if she remained. Whom? Mrs. Fraser? That was impossible as yet.

At that moment she saw Doctor Jenkins driving up the path, and went to meet him.

The boy sprang to the ground and raised his hat. "Good morning, Miss Wentworth. How is the doctor today?" he asked.

"Doctor Lancaster looks very ill," she answered. "And Doctor Jenkins, I want to ask you—"

"Pardon me, Miss Wentworth. Can I see him?"

"He is with Mr. Myers."

Jenkins' face assumed an aspect of profound discouragement. "Then I'll come back this afternoon," he said, preparing to enter the buggy again.

But he found Joan intercepting his passage. She had noted the look on his face, and she felt that he understood much which could be explained.

"Doctor Jenkins," she said quietly, "Doctor Lancaster is unwell and I am his nurse. Will you not tell me what is the matter with him?"

"Why, Miss Wentworth—" stammered the doctor.

So Doctor Lancaster himself is the sick man! And Joan says she'll help him. What ails the doctor?

Most headaches due to lack of internal cleanliness

WHEN you are constipated, poisons form in the accumulated food waste and are carried to all parts of the body. Headaches follow. Bilioussness, insomnia, lack of energy, all result from constipation, which if unchecked will lead to serious results.

Avoid Laxatives—Say Doctors

A noted authority says that laxatives and cathartics do not overcome constipation, but by their continued use tend only to aggravate the condition.

Medical science has found in lubrication a means of overcoming constipation. The gentle lubricant, Nujol, penetrates and softens the hard food waste and thus hastens its passage through and out of the body. Thus, Nujol brings internal cleanliness.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals and is prescribed by physicians throughout the world. Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, and cannot gripe. Like pure water, it is harmless.

Take Nujol regularly and adopt this habit of internal cleanliness. For sale by all druggists.

Might Be Possible

A boy patient at a hospital had a squint, and was consulting one of the doctors about it.

"Does he ever see double?" said the doctor to his mother.

"Can't exactly say that, sir," she replied, and then, trying to be helpful, she added, "He's one of twins, though—perhaps he does."

Famous Americans Born in Month of February

Children born in February have all the odds of obtaining greatness in their favor. Figures compiled by Dr. Robert Underwood Johnson, director of the Hall of Fame, show that more men and women enrolled in the hall were born during February than in any other month. Twelve of the sixty-three persons who have niches in the hall had their birthdays that month.

They were Mark Hopkins February 4; William Tecumseh Sherman, February 8; Daniel Boone, February 11; Peter Cooper, February 12; Abraham Lincoln, February 12; George Peabody, February 18; Alice Freeman Palmer, February 21; George Washington, February 22; James Russell Lowell, February 22; Emma Willard, February 23; Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, February 27, and Mary Lyon, February 28.

Doctor Johnson's list showed that April was second with eight Hall of Fame members. June was last with only two.

A COVINGTON, KY., WOMAN Makes Remarkable Recovery

Mrs. Harry Ashcroft Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Severe Illness and Pain

MRS. HARRY ASHCROFT
632 BEECH AVENUE, COVINGTON, KY.

Covington, Ky.—"I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do my housework as I could not stand because of the bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen. I sat down most of the time and did what I could do in that way—as washing dishes, etc. One day a book describing Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines was put in my mail box. I saw how the Vegetable Compound had helped others so I gave it a trial. I had to take about a dozen bottles before I gained my strength, but I certainly praise this medicine. Then I took Lydia E.

Pinkham's Blood Medicine for poor blood. I was cold all the time. I would be so cold I could hardly sit still and in the palms of my hands there would be drops of sweat. I also used the Sanative Wash and I recommend it also. You may publish this letter and I will gladly answer letters from women and advise my neighbors about these medicines."

—Mrs. HARRY ASHCROFT, 632 Beech Avenue, Covington, Kentucky.

Mrs. Boyer Also Found Help

Gilman City, Missouri.—"I was in such a condition that I could not eat nor sleep to do me any good and I felt draggy all the time. My head ached, my right side and back would almost kill me at times, and I could be on my feet only a short while at a time. I was irregular and so nervous, irritable and despondent that I thought I could not stand the strain much longer. I had been this way more or less for ten years, but the last two years was just terrible. I took medicines, but got little relief until I began to take the Vegetable Compound. I took three bottles before I could see any change at all. I have taken seven in all and am improving right along. I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and take the Liver Pills. I can do most of my work now, and I live on a farm and there is lots of it to do. I wash, iron, hoe the garden, raise chickens and tend to the milk."—Mrs. T. M. BOYER, Gilman City, Missouri.

Eastern Beliefs

Concerning Crystal

The two largest flawless crystal spheres in the world were recently exhibited in New York. One of them measures nine inches in diameter and the other just fifteen-sixteenths of an inch less. The value of the pair is placed at $50,000.

The spheres were brought to New York from China, where they were cut from a perfect Burma crystal with a small metal hatchet. The work required infinite patience.

In ancient times in the Far East and in Europe crystals were supposed to be ice in permanent form. In Japan small crystals were said to be the breath of the Great White Dragon, while the larger ones were supposed to come from the Violet Dragon.

More About Tuition

The following communication from L. G. Bruder of Mokena regarding the Mokena school tuition recently appeared in the Prairie Farmer.

Editor School Department: I live one mile west of Mokena, Ill., on the section line dividing New Lenox and Frankfort township. My house and buildings are in District 124, New Lenox township. I pay taxes on 90 acres in this district and on 73 acres in the Mokena school district.

My son has been attending the Mokena school for three years and has not been asked to pay tuition. Last fall the school board told me I would have to pay tuition at the rate of $6 a month each for my two children. Isn't this excessive? Should not the fact that I am paying taxes in the Mokena district be taken into consideration? L. G. Bruder, Will Co., Ill.

Legally the fact that you pay taxes in the district has nothing to do with the case. It is residence that counts in a case of this kind rather than location of property. The tuition charge should be determined by dividing the cost of running the school by the number of pupils. Whether $6 a month is excessive in your case could only be determined by knowing the annual amount spent by the Mokena district and the number of pupils enrolled. The directors of district 124 can pay the tuition of your children to the Mokena school if they see fit to do so. Maybe you can induce them to do so.—Editor Prairie Farmer.

Mokena Has High Tax Rate

Deputy Tax Collector Max F. Haass of Frankfort has completed his work of collecting the taxes in Frankfort township.

Taxes this year showed a big increase over last year. In some instances, tax payers who had a $50 tax last year, had to pay an increase of $10 or a total of $60 this year.

Taxes in the village of Mokena are exceptionally high this year and Mokena has the highest tax rate of any village around here, the rate being $9.67 per $100 assessed valuation. The village is heavily in debt and is paying off on a heavy bonded indebtedness each year.

The village of Frankfort has only a tax rate of $1.38 per $100 assessed valuation and has no indebtedness and has money in its treasury beside.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON "SUCKER LISTS"

"Ever since I bought that $500 electric company bond, Aunt Emmy," said Helen, "I have been pestered by all sorts of bond salesmen to buy other things. I should like to invest again, but I am bewildered. Every day or so I see something that sounds so good. But I don't know what to do."

"That reminds me," said Aunt Emmy, fishing through her workbasket and taking out some clippings from her needle book. "I have an article from a magazine that will help. The writer gave some questions to make a bond salesman answer in writing and said that if the salesman were on the square he would answer the questions satisfactorily. Here they are," and Aunt Emmy began to read:

"1. Will my bank say that the house which is offering the security is reputable?"

"2. Give an exact description of the security?"

"3. What provision is made for paying off this and other securities of the company?"

"4. What is the nature of the business of the company?"

"5. How much of a margin did the company earn annually over all its depreciation and interest charges for each of the last ten years?"

"6. What dividends has the company paid on its stock for each of the last ten years?"

"7. What are the company's total assets and liabilities and has it sufficient funds to carry on its business?"

"8. What are the experience and reputation of the men controlling and operating the company?"

"Then the next thing to do is to go to your banker and let him check up all this information for you," added Aunt Emmy. "Now that you know your name is on a 'sucker list' be doubly careful."

"What's a 'sucker list,' Auntie?"

"It is a list of the names of people who have purchased securities or inquired about them. Such lists are bought by so-called investment brokerage houses all over the country. Lots of bad securities are sold through unscrupulous brokers writing to the names on those lists."

"Oh, that's it, is it?" exclaimed Helen. "I suppose the poor people are flattered at getting such letters. I know I was."

"Just so," Aunt Emmy said, with a smile.—Anne B. Aymes.

HOW BANKERS HELP

Seventeen students are securing an education in the Georgia State College of Agriculture through financial aid which the State Bankers Association is giving. In 1923 the Association increased its annual dues so as to contribute toward the education of boys and girls in club work who could not otherwise receive a higher education. This year, therefore, $1,000 was put into a trust fund with the College to be loaned to students who need help. It was placed in what is known as the "Ex-President's Fund," a fund which has been receiving voluntary contributions from the retiring presidents of the Bankers Association since 1915. In amount the fund is now $7,153. Fifty students have been helped prior to this year, making a total of sixty-seven.

THE FRIENDLINESS OF MODERN BANKING

By WILLIAM E. KNOX

President American Bankers Association

Until a few years ago savings banks were extremely austere institutions. They were founded to do the kindest thing in the world, that is, to take care of the savings of poor people, but they did it in a most repellent way. They did not extend to their banking business any of the courtesies or any of the amenities of life whatever. They simply took the money, did the depositor the favor of taking it, and gave it back to him when he wanted it. And then they considered their full duty done.

William E. Knox

The tellers and clerks treated the depositors as though they were entirely beneath them. I, myself, heard a depositor, an old Irishwoman, say to a teller who had been snappish with her: "Then you better keep a civil tongue in your head. It is the likes of me that keeps the likes of you in your place." In that brief and caustic and well-deserved comment she had summed up the whole situation in a nutshell.

There was nothing warm, nothing cordial, but as the years went by those who worked at the windows got on friendly and kindly relations with the people coming to the windows. Here and there some man got so close to the people that they began to tell him their personal affairs and ask for his advice, and of late years the banks, too, have been stressing the human element. They have struck a better way of approaching people.

They have taken steps, for instance, to try to get as close as they can to the foreign element. That is one of the great problems in all the large manufacturing and business centers. A great mass of foreigners come here and get together in groups, but they do not get any real touch of Americanism. They are just as Jewish and just as Italian ten or twenty years after they come here as they were the day they came, because nobody appears to take any particular interest in them. But when an institution like a savings bank begins to take an interest in the problems of the people, to let them feel that here is a group of people engaged in a business that is willing to listen to them, their troubles, their trials, is willing to advise them, willing to steer them straight, willing to be sort of Big Brother to them, I do not think there is any better Americanization work than that being done.

That is the kind of work the progressive savings bank is starting on,—telling people that if they will come to them with their troubles they will be glad to give them the best disinterested advice, to do things for them free, that otherwise they would be charged for by some body. They are willing to advise them when they get a little more money than the savings bank can take care of, what they can invest it in, or in some cases what not to invest it in.

If the savings and commercial banks all over the country adopt that particular attitude toward our foreign fellow-citizens, it will give them an entirely different view of Americanism. It is this changed attitude that has resulted in the tremendous growth of deposits that have taken place in the savings banks since the war. There has been a different spirit breathed into the relations between the depositors and the men on the other side of the counter.

MORE BACKBONE, LESS WISHBONE

Why not think on the matter of wishbones and backbones and decide to take the power out of our wishbones and put it in our backbones? That's the place we need it if we are to accomplish things worth while.—Banker-Farmer.

The Cost of Service

ON the loyalty and skill of the human element depends the character of telephone service. The providers of this service must not only meet the market prices for materials. They must also maintain at any cost a high standard of workmanship.

Because of advancing prices, the telephone dollar goes only half as far as it did ten years ago. More than three-fifths of this dollar is necessarily expended for wages. Less would neither attract nor hold the high-grade workers essential to maintain America's standards.

That Bell telephone rates have advanced much less than other prices is largely due to economies in methods and apparatus that have been developed and introduced. It is also because the proportion of operating plant built at pre-war prices is still large, though this is steadily decreasing because of new construction made necessary by the nation's telephone needs.

Auto Owners Are

Opposed to Gas Tax

Motorists throughout the State of Illinois—from the Wisconsin line to the Ohio River—have been aroused to the inequities of the proposed gasoline tax, now pending in the Legislature, and a tremendous protest is rapidly rolling across the State, due to the broadcasting of petitions opposing it by the Illinois Automotive Trade Association of Peoria. Ten thousand of these petitions have been scattered throughout the length and breadth of the State—in every city, hamlet and town and especially in each Senatorial District.

These petitions not only protest against any gasoline tax in Illinois but urge every Senator and Representative to vote against any such measure. They point out that the motor vehicle registration fees now amply provide for the building of State roads; that the motor vehicle is now taxed by the Federal Government, that it is required to pay a personal property tax to the State and County Government, a State License fee and, in many cities, a State "wheel tax" also. "No additional tax on motor vehicles should be imposed," the petition concludes.

The response to the invitation of the State Association for motorists and voters to sign these petitions has been unexpectedly large. Voters in general and motorists in particular, have flocked in to get their names on these records of protest. Many thousands have already thus voiced their protest, and before the petitions are finally sent to the Legislature it is expected the number will bulk so large that the members of the General Assembly will be fully convinced that any kind of gasoline tax in Illinois will be highly unpopular with a great majority of the voters.

Not only will these petitions be sent to the Legislature in bulk, but it is the plan of the Illinois Automotive Association to see to it that the Senators and Representatives from each individual district become thoroughly acquainted with the volume of protest from their home district—that the folks back home will not stand for any tax of this character.
